

John is retired after a 26-year career with the Illinois Farm Bureau, where he provided media relations and online content for IFB's websites. John also owns a 770-acre farm near Buffalo in Sangamon County, which utilizes terraces and other conservation practices to help reduce soil erosion on the land. John has served as past chairman of The Sangamon Conservancy Trust and is a current member of the board.